RESTAURANTS IN JACKSON HOLE

About this activity

Jackson Hole is home to an amazing selection of local restaurants – from classic western to brew pubs, Thai food and elevated alpine cuisine there's no limit to our local culinary communities' creativity. Most restaurants are open with limited occupancy and heightened health and safety protocols. Due to the limited seating, if you're hoping to dine in person it's highly encouraged to make a reservation and manage your expectations – tables will be spaced out, menus may be disposable or available through a QR code – businesses are still trying to provide the same level of experience, but safely.

If you're not comfortable dining out, restaurants have expanded their to-go options and online ordering to optimize the guest experience. Some chefs are offering prepared meals to go or meal kits where you can make your restaurant favorites in the comfort of your condo. Private chefs and catered dining options are available, too.

Apres is a staple in ski culture, but may look a little different this year. Teton Village restaurants are encouraging grab and go post-skiing snacks and drinks to apres at your house or hotel room. Outdoor tents will be set up at the base of Teton Village to allow people to bring their own food or order takeout and socially distance for lunch on the mountain.

Things might look a little different this year, so here are a few things to keep in mind:

- The restaurant industry has experienced the biggest changes: limited seating, outdoor seating if possible, including setting up heated tented dining areas, regular testing of employees, implementing takeout menus and offering curbside pickup and delivery in many cases.
- A regularly updated list of open restaurants can be found through the Chamber of Commerce.
- Look at to-go options, including food and drinks, from restaurants to enjoy at your hotel or house for apres at home.
- Make a reservation if you want to dine in, as seating is extremely limited.

DINING AND RESTAURANTS

Each business will look different, but there are precautions each are taking to keep our community, and you, safe as well as things you can do to travel and enjoy your visit responsibly.

- The staff will be following current local and state COVID-19 guidelines and recommendations so check the individual websites or call the property for the latest updates.
- Per local ordinance, masks are required in public spaces include any time you are in a restaurant and not seated at your own table.
- There is a limit on how many non-household members can sit together, so keep in mind if you're traveling with a larger group you may not be able to sit together.
